"As a new graduate, starting out in practice, my clinical reasoning skills were very limited. During my time at University, there was little thought or time given, either by myself or my tutors, to the acquisition of these skills."

English school graduate 2000

"Clinical training at veterinary school immerses students in huge volumes of clinical theory and textbook like instruction on procedures and investigations. At the time these appear overwhelming and complex. As a newly qualified veterinary surgeon, my clinical reasoning skills were minimal and certainly not at a stage that allowed independent work"
